Re: Oracle USA, Inc., et al. v. Rimini Street, Inc. and Seth Ravin, No. 2:10-cv-0106 LRH PAL (D. Nev.)

Dear Rob:

This letter addresses continuing deficiencies in Rimini's supplemental discovery responses.

Customer Contracts

Thank you for producing contracts for the customers that we identified to you as having been omitted from RSI06806783. However, we could not locate contracts for Please identify these contracts in the production or produce them shortly.

In addition, we have not been able to locate an updated customer list in Rimini's most recent production. Please identify the list in the production or provide us with one.

Please also confirm that you have now fixed all of your prior omissions and that the updated customer list you will produce will include all PeopleSoft, J.D. Edwards, and Siebel customers that Rimini has signed contracts with or provided support to since the last customer identified on Rimini's September 28, 2011 updated Exhibit A to Oracle's Rog. No. 7

It is disappointing that it will have been at least seven months since we first started discussing updating discovery for Rimini to confirm that it has identified all of its new customers.

Finally, please confirm that you have now produced all amendments to all PeopleSoft, J.D. Edwards, and Siebel customer contracts for customers Rimini previously identified during discovery.

Financial Information

There continue to be deficiencies in Rimini's updated financial production (RSI06808792).

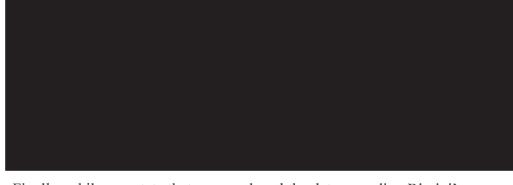

• Rimini still has not produced a full set of financial statements for the relevant time period. Please produce Rimini's 2013 audited financial statements and Rimini's 2014 Q1 and Q2 financial statements

•	The narrow snippets of cost and financial information you have produced are not sufficient to understand Rimini's costs.

•	The salary information in tabs #1.1, #1.2, and #1.3 is insufficient and does not include the detail included in the

• The headcount data in tabs #1.1, #1.2, and #1.3 is similarly insufficient.

• Finally, while you state that you produced the data regarding Rimini's IPO-related financial projections, you have not produced any of the documents that include such financial analyses, including any discussion or analysis that accompanies the data.

Customer Communications

When we last discussed updated discovery efforts, you stated Rimini would produce communications with customers, and that you would consider our proposal of making custodian-based productions from sales managers. Please let us know when there is a good time to discuss these issues.

If you would like to discuss any of these issues further, please let me know.
